Your child will have at-home access to all of the games that he or she has completed at school. Sometimes, children have trouble with some levels and need extra practice, and sometimes they just have fun playing the games. Watch your child and offer advice and encouragement, but the games are meant to help the students learn to problem-solve, so make sure they have that opportunity. Contact Mrs. Niday or your child's teacher if you'd like a list of the games that were difficult for your child at school.
